ABSTRACT

Georgaphic origins or permanent residence of all first-time credit course students attending the SUNY institutions during the 1973 fall term are surveyed. This report includes eight tables of basic data in relation to the four coordinating areas of New York state. These areas offer a policy and planning framework for meeting the educational needs of the citizens of any given area of the state while maximizing the efficient use of the existing academic resources in a given area. Tables are included that list the State University institutions in each area and show the permanent residence distribution of the full-time first-time students by area as a percent of total enrollment. During the 1970's, the percentage of college-going within New York state students served by the State University has steadily increased, even when the college-going rate itself has remained stable or declined. Some limitations of the study are cited with regard to data collection procedures. (LBH)

PREFACE

This report presents the results of the annual survey of geographic origins or permanent residence of all first-time credit course students attending the institutions of the State University of New York during the 1973 fall term. It is the companion report to Geographic Origins of Students, Fall 1973 which provides permanent residence data for all credit course students. These reports comprise a significant data resource for studies of the residence and migration of college and university students. The statewide nature of the student bodies of State University institutions has led to a deep interest in these data for enrollment projecting, for policy planning, and for other administrative purposes.

Although most studies of the geographic origins of college youth suffer the problem of a valid definition of "residence", first-time student studies are probably quite free of the customary variables affecting definitional inconsistency. First-time students have never been to a college previous to the term they are reported. Most first-time students are minors under 21 years of age, single, living at home when applying, and then attending full-time -- factors likely to change as the students grow older, marry and participate concurrently in non-student occupations which may affect their domicile.

Because this report is confined to the enrollments and permanent residence of first-time undergraduate students, those S.U.N.Y. institutions which do not offer any beginning level college programs are not included.

This report includes eight tables of basic data on the permanent residence of University students in relation to the four coordinating areas of New York State. These areas are a policy and planning framework through which the University hopes to better meet the educational needs of the citizens of any given area of the state while at the same time maximizing the efficient use of the existing academic resources in a given area. To aid this process, we have included tables which list the State University institutions in each area and show the permanent residence distribution of the full-time first-time students by area as a percent of total enrollment.

No study of this magnitude could have been conducted or completed without the extensive cooperation of campus personnel and of those in the Central Staff Office of Institutional Research. Those who will use this document will be grateful for that effort. We would give serious consideration to any recommendations for future studies or reports of this type.

SUMMARY

In the 1973 fall semester, 108,137 first-time students enrolled in institutions of the State University of New York; this represents an increase of 4% over the number of first-time students in the fall of the previous year. Of these 108,137 students, 82,149 or 76% were full-time, and 106,031 or 98% of the total were permanent residents of New York State.

The college-going rate statistics published by the New York State Education Department provide a basis for evaluating the extent to which the State University serves those New York State high school graduates enrolling in a college located in New York State. The college-going rate within New York State is defined as the percent of all graduates from New York State high schools entering a postsecondary institution in New York State. Given the number of New York State high school graduates, the college-going rate within New York State for that group, and the subsequent enrollment of first-time students at the State University whose permanent residence is New York State, it is possible to arrive at a figure representing the percent of college-going students within New York State served by the State University. In 1972-73, the college-going rate within New York State was 55.7%; there were 243,174 New York State high school graduates and 106,031 first-time enrollees whose permanent residence was New York State. Consequently, 78.3% of New York State high school graduates planning to attend a postsecondary institution in New York State were served by the State University. During the 1970's, the percent of college-going within New York State students served by the State University has steadily increased; this has been the case even when the college-going rate itself has remained stable or declined. The following is a summary of this information from 1969-70 through 1972-73:

Year	College going rate within New York State	Percent of college-going rate served by S.U.N.Y.
1969-70	56.0%	69.3%
1970-71	56.8%	75.5%
1971-72	55.7%	75.8%
1972-73	55.7%	78.3%

While the trends which emerge from the data calculated utilizing the college-going rate are illuminating and important, certain potential limitations on this information should be recognized. Information on the college-going rate is reported by the high school schools to the State Education Department in the fall of each year. The procedures used by different schools in assembling this data may vary depending on a number of factors such as the size of the school or the resources available for collecting the information. One common way of collecting this data is to survey students with regard to their college-going plans in the spring of the year prior to their high school graduation. While many high school students have firm plans by this time, others do not. Consequently, in the interval between the initial survey and the actual reporting of the data, attempts are made to update the information. Additional information for this purpose may be obtained in an unsolicited manner from the student, from a follow-up study initiated by the school or from records submitted to the school from postsecondary institutions. Because of methodological variations in obtaining this data, inferences based on the college-going rate statistics should be made circumspectly. It should also be recognized that a first-time student at the State University whose permanent residence is within New York State could have graduated from a New York State high school in a year prior to the year of his or her enrollment at the State University. It is also possible to be a first-time student at the State University with a permanent residence in New York State and have graduated from a high school outside of New York State.

In addition to providing information on the geographic origins of first-time students by specific institution and permanent residence, this report also contains data on the permanent residence of State University students in relation to the four coordinating areas of New York State. These areas are a policy and planning framework through which the University hopes to better meet the educational needs of the citizens of any given area of the state while at the same time maximizing the efficient use of existing educational resources in a given area. To aid in this process, tables are included which list the State University institutions in each area and show the permanent residence distribution of the full-time first-time students by area as a percent of total enrollment. This allows consideration of the number of students attending a State University institution in the area of their permanent residence, and which areas contribute the most students to each type of institution.
